Mount Vernon, The Home of Washington.

A pretty little story of visits to Mount Vernon on the Potomne-"impressions and sentiments like yours and mine," explains the author to those who have seen our country's greatest shrine.

Bound in colonial blue and buff, with hand illumined cover design, and colonial ribbon book mark; professly illustrated with handsome half-tones and pen drawings, it is a dalaty and invaluable reminder that will instantly appeal to every person who has been to Mount Vernon, while to those who have not had that good fortune this clever, happy little story of our beloved George and Martha gives a clearer view and understanding of their colonial home, which is today the pride of Virginia and the Nation.

As a souvenir or gift book, for young or old, there is nothing to appreach the elegance of this little volume, and it will make one feel more like a patriotic American to possess its

GRAND ARMY ENGAMPMENT. Plane for proper reception and entertainment of veterans at the coming annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held in Washington next September, are working out satisfactorily. The various committees are meeting with encouragement, and there is every reason to believe that their fondest hopes for success will be realized. President Wilson and Secretary of War Garrison are among the prominent persons who already have signified their willingness to serve on the honorary committee to welcome the veterans to the Capital. EASTER MONDAY AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

It is estimated that ten thousand people passed into the White House grounds on Easter Monday. Nearly all of these were children, who went with their baskets and lunches, and with full supplies of Easter eggs. The pretty custom of rolling eggs and playng special games has come down from arly days of the republic. It is the be day in the year when the children take charge of the White House rounds, and from the happiness they display one might be tempted to believe that on this particular day the country is in their keeping.

BRYAN A PEMATOR? Washington has lent a listening ear to the talk that Secretary Bryan will be a candidate for United States Sentor to succeed Mr. Hitchcock of Noracka. The two men absolutely refuse to track together in the Nebraska political harness, and the Peerless One, who has always been happiest when following the role of an advocate, may find the Senate the place to satisfy his longing to talk. However, Mr. Hitchcock is a sterling fighter, and if he and Bryan measure their strength in Nebraska it will be one of the pretriest fights ever pulled off anywhere. PROSPERITY BOOSTERS IN WASH-

SYNOPSIS.

Frank O'Connell, young Irish patriet, is shot and wounded by British soldiers while making a home rule speach. He is aided by Angela Kingsnorth, an English society girl, who defends him. Angels takes O'Connell to her brother's home and helps to nurse him. He recovers and he and the girl become fast triends. O'Connell when well is sent to jail for disturbing the peace. He finally writes Angels that he has finished his sentence. O'Connell and Angela wed. She has sepoused the Irish cause. Her brother, a member of parliament, is very angry.

The happy couple come to America to live. A daughter is born to them. Angela's brother refuses to help the couple in any way. Angela dies.

O'Connell names his daughter Margaret and sails her "Peg." O'Connell receives a most important letter from England, which perplexes him. O'Connell allows Peg to visit England at her uncle's request. The elder Kings-north's heart had finally softened toward his dead sister's little girl.

Per goes to the home of the Chichester samily in England at the direction of Mr. Hawkes, Kingsnorth's attorney, as Kingsnorth suddenly dies.

She first meets Ethel Chichester and Brent, a married man in love with Ethel.

Ethel is suraged at Peg and haughtily israises her from the drawing room, anding her to the servants' quarters. The hichesters have lost their money in a sant failura.

Hawkes arrives and reads the Kings-parth will. It leaves most of the fortune to Peg and offers liberal pay to any one who will undertake her education and so-Mrs. Chiebester finally agrees to bring up Peg in return for the money promised, although she openly despises the shabby young girl.

Peg is heartbroken at the cold reception given her by the Chichester family. She is much impressed, however, by the luxury of her surroundings.

"Well, if ye don't want him inside yer house ye don't want me inside yer house," Peg snapped back. Hawkes pleaded.

"No!" said Peg firmly. "I will not give him up." The lawyer tried again to take the dog from her. "Come, Miss O'Connell; self justification, she said: "See, she has a dog in the house right here in the house. Look at it!" And she pointed to where the little ball of white wool lay sleeping on Ethel's lap. Then Peg laughed heartily. "I didn't know what it was until it moved."

He was genuinely concerned that his old chum should not meet that impossible little red headed Irish heathen whom an unkind fate had dropped down in their midst.

At the hall door Mrs. Chichester told Jarvis that her niece was not to leave her room without permission. As Mrs. Chichester and Alarie passed out they little dreamed that the same releatless fate was planning still further humiliations for the unfortunate family and through the new and unwelcome addition to it. Peg was shown by the maid, Bennett, into a charming old world room overlooking the rose garden. Everything about it was in the most exquisite taste. The furniture was of white and gold, the vascs of Sevres, a few admirable prints on the walls and roses everywhere. Left to her reflections, poor Peg found herself wondering how people with so much that was beautiful around them could live and act as the Chichester family apparently did. "Then what are ye makin' such a fuzo about? You go out toe." She watched the disappointed Bennett leave the room and then began a tour of inspection. She had never seen so many strange things outside of a museum. Fierco men in armor glared at her out of massive frames; old gentlemen in powdered wigs smiled pleasantly at her; haughty ladies in breath bereaving colfures stared superciliously right through her. She felt most uncomfortable in such strange company, On the piano she found a perfectly carved bronze statuette of Cupid. She gave a little elfish cry of delight, took the statuette in her arms and kissed it. "Cupid, me darlin'! Faith, it's you that causes all the mischief in the wurrld, ye divil yel" she cried. All her depression vanished. She was like a child again. She sat flown at the piano and played the simple refrain and sang in her little girlish tremulous voice one of her father's favorite songs, her eyes on Cupid: "Oh, the days are gone when beauty My heart's charm wove! When my dream of life, from morn till

The man came well into the room, turning down the collar of his coat and shaking the moisture from his clothes when he suddenly saw the kneeling figure of Peg. He looked down at her in surprise. She was intent on her Drayers.

"Hellol" cried the young man. "Frightened, ch?" Peg looked up and saw him staring down at her with a smile on his lips. Inside his coat was her precious little dog, trembling with fear. The terrier barked loudly when he saw his mistress. Peg sprang up and clutched Michael away from the stranger just as another blinding flash played around about tutors. Peg ran across to the door, shouting: "Shut it out! Shut it out!" She stood there trembling, covering her eyes with one hand; with the other she held on to the overloyed Michael, who was whining with gice at seeing her again.

The amazed and amused young man closed the windows and the curtains. "Don't come near the dog, sir! Don't come near it!" She opened a door and found it led into a little reception room. She fastened Michael with a piece of string to a chair in the room and came back to look again at the stranger, who had evidently rescued her dog from the storm. He was a tall, bronzed, athletic looking, broad shouldered young man of about twenty-six, with a pleasant, genial, magnetle manner and a playful humor lurking in his eyes.

As Peg looked him all over she found that he was smiling down at her. "Does the dog belong to you?" he ducried. "What were you doln' with bim?" she asked to reply. "I found him barking at a very high apirited mare."

"Maro?" cried Peg. "Where?" "Tied to the stable door." "The stable door? Is that where they put Michael?" Once again the lightning dashed vividiy.

"Peg!" And there was a sullen note of fixed determination in her tone. "Feg, ch?" And the stranger smiled. She nodded and looked at him curl-

"Just plain Jerry," he answered cheerfully. "And you're Peg." She nodded again, with a quiek little omile. "Just plain Peg." "I don't agree with you," said the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has re-stored the health of thousands of woman who have been troubled with such allments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Mcdicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and hold in strict confidence.

Detailed Description of What the New Building Will Be Like,

Following is a somewhat detailed description of the new station and restaurant that will be built on Mount Washington this summer, on the site of the famous old Summit house, and will rest on the foundation built three years ago on the site of the Summit house, destroyed by fire in 1908.

The new building will be 38 feet wide, 172 feet long and one and onehalf stories high. It will be built entirely of wood in the old-fashioned way -strong, neat in appearance and comfortable.

No plaster will be used, the inside being finished with sheathing. There will be a spacious lobby, with a big with plenty of comfortable chairs. Here will be the office, the postoffice, ing tables.

There will be a dining-room and lunch counter; the dining-room will have eight tables and the lunch counter will have 42 stools. Lavatories will opening of The Dalles-Celilo Canal, and be on the main floor off from the lobby. Upstairs will be twenty guest rooms, each with a dormer window. In each
